Ask your veterinarian about how herbal therapy can help your pet feel better.

Herbal formulas are a gentle, natural, non-toxic, therapeutic approach that provides a wonderful option and a holistic complement to your companion animal's health-care. Learn how herbs can help support your pet's wellness, great and small.

How can my pet benefit from herbal therapy?

Using whole plants or their extract can produce improved outcomes and fewer side effects than many pharmaceutical products. Clinical and laboratory research indicate that the support of normal function of the liver, kidneys, heart, and immune system; reduced inflammation and improved blood flow through damaged tissues; normalization of smooth muscle contraction; aging and death of tumor cells, and elimination of pain. In some cases, herbal medicine may eliminate the need for chronic medications. The components of herbal formulas may act synergistically to give greater positive effects than would be possible when used individually.

What is the cost of herbal therapy?

In general, treatment using veterinary herbal therapy is not prohibitively expensive. Over the long term, it often proves less expensive than conventional medicine.

Can herbal therapy be combined with traditional veterinary medicine?

Herbal therapy can be combined with other forms of treatment if the appropriate precautions are taken. Some herbs are very potent, and caution must be used when combining them with other treatments such as drugs, homeopathic remedies, and acupuncture, since these treatments can negate the effects of each other. As a complete and well-developed system of medicine, herbal therapy is effective as the sole form of treatment for most conditions except those requiring surgery, and is used that way by skilled practitioners.
